

Contents

Preface	p.	9
Chapter 1
Literary Character's Curriculum Vitae and First Theoretical Frameworks	»	13
1.1 Extrapolating characters from the texts: the humanising approaches	»	13
1.2 First alternatives to tradition	»	16
1.3 The Russian Formalism and Vladimir Propp's The Morphology of the Folk Tale : impact on character	»	21
1.4 Postmodernism and literary character: the Linguistic Turn	»	25
1.5 Ultimate dissolution into text: the Structuralist perspective	»	31
1.6 Nestling into texts: from characters to actants	»	35
Chapter 2
Character and Language: A Stylistic Perspective	»	39
2.1 Introduction	»	39
2.1.1 What is Stylistics?	»	40
2.2 Systemic Functional Linguistics and its exploitation for the analysis of characters	»	43
2.2.1 An overview of Systemic Functional Linguistics	»	43
2.2.2 The Transitivity system of language	»	46
2.2.3 Transitivity and characterisation	»	51
2.3 Characters and their minds: cognitive approaches	»	58
2.3.1 Introduction	»	58
2.3.2 Metaphor and mind style	»	59

2.3.3 Mind Style and Blending theory	»	64
2.4 A 'mixed approach' to characters	»	70
2.4.1 General overview and ontological conditions of possible individuals	»	70
2.4.2 Inferring characters: the interaction of language and readers' cognitive structures	»	73
2.5 Modality and Characterisation	»	93
2.5.1 Introduction: what is modality?	»	93
2.5.2 Modality and Possible World Theory	»	94
2.6 Further strategies for character construction	»	98
2.6.1 Characters and intertextuality	»	98
2.6.2 The role of intermental thinking and doubly embedded narratives in the construction of a character	»	99
2.7 Conclusion	»	104

Chapter 3

Stylistics 'At Work': Some Sample Analyses	»	105
3.1 Introduction	»	105
3.2 Story world	»	105
3.3 Introduction of the characters	»	107
3.4 The role of intertextuality in the construction of the characters	»	109
3.5 Structure of the novel and characters	»	110
3.6 'Transitivity profile' of the characters	»	111
3.7 Characters and mind-style	»	114
3.8 Conversation analysis, politeness and characterisation	»	117
3.9 The role of lexis	»	119
3.10 Characterisation through intermental thinking, doubly embedded narratives, and the relationship between thought and action	»	124
3.11 Conclusion	»	128
Selected Bibliography	»	129